35 YEARS OF Hope

Wellness House is celebrating 35 Years of Hope—a milestone made possible by the compassion and commitment of our community. From the very beginning, our vision has been to create a place where anyone impacted by cancer can find comfort, connection, and the tools to live well during and after cancer.

That vision continues to expand. With new partnerships like our collaboration with Little Company of Mary in Evergreen Park, a growing presence online, and more participants than ever walking through the doors in Hinsdale, we are building bridges of hope that reach further every year.

Our mission shapes a future in which every person facing cancer finds community and strength. Because of you, thousands of individuals and families are able to learn, heal, and thrive through more than 525 monthly programs, all at no cost. Together, we will continue to grow, to innovate, and to bring hope to every person who needs it—today, tomorrow, and for the next 35 years.

35 Years Strong: Helping More People with Cancer Thrive Every Day.

For 35 years, Wellness House has combined expertise and compassion to bring free, life-changing cancer support to thousands. Thanks to our donors, more people than ever are finding hope and healing.

Since 1990, Wellness House has served more than 52,000 individuals and their families. In 2025, the organization continues to expand its impact through the Home of Hope, partner locations, healthcare provider training, and robust online programming.

Dear Friends

This year, we celebrate 35 years of hope. Since opening our doors in 1990, Wellness House has become far more than a building in Hinsdale; it has grown into a sanctuary where thousands of people facing cancer discover comfort, knowledge, and strength. Together, we have built a community where no one walks this journey alone.

Supportive oncology is, at its heart, multi-dimensional. It addresses not only the body, but also the mind, spirit, and relationships that give life meaning. At Wellness House, healing is cultivated in many ways: through exercise that restores strength, nutrition that energizes, counseling and groups that foster resilience and quiet the mind, and children's programs that create a safe and supportive space for families. Offered at no cost, these evidence-based programs complement medical treatment and affirm a profound truth: people are more than patients, and healing is more than medicine.

Because of your generosity, more than 52,000 individuals have engaged in Wellness House programs since our founding. This past year alone, over 4,000 people found hope and healing through 6,300 programs across Chicagoland. Each number reflects a life touched: Johnny, who realized he was not fighting alone; Maria and Felipe, who found knowledge and love in a community that feels like family; and countless others whose stories remind us that healing flourishes in the presence of community.

As we look to the future, our vision continues to expand. Already a leader in supportive oncology, we are strengthening partnerships, bringing programs into more communities, and advancing innovative approaches to ensure our mission reaches those who need it most. Thirty-five years ago, Wellness House was a bold idea. Today, it is a movement of hope and healing. Tomorrow, with your continued partnership, it will remain a source of strength for generations to come. In the pages that follow, we invite you to see the profound impact of your generosity: stories of courage, resilience, and community that you make possible.

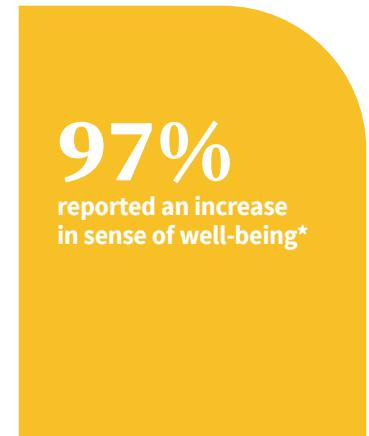

With deep gratitude,

A Place Like No Other: Johnny's Story

At Wellness House, hope is not a distant promise. It is something you feel the moment you walk through the door. For Johnny, navigating life with cancer in Chicago's Englewood neighborhood, that moment came when he least expected it and exactly when he needed it most.

"When I first heard about Wellness House, I didn't take the time to really look through the materials," Johnny admits. "I thought, 'I've got too much going on to be going to some program.'" But the nurses at his hospital kept mentioning it, especially one young woman who would not give up on him. Eventually, curiosity and perhaps a little stubborn hope, won out. "One day I thought, 'What do I have to lose? Let me see what this place is about.'"

What Johnny found was not just a place; it was a community that felt like home. "The first person I met was Emily. She gave me a tour, explained all the programs, and from that moment on I was hooked. I always say Wellness House is like Disney World; it's the most wonderful place. It's that special."

But his cancer journey was anything but magical. The shock of a cancer diagnosis left Johnny unmooored. "For the first couple of weeks, my mind went blank. Then came the doom and gloom. It took me six months just to accept it." Chemotherapy took a physical toll, and the emotional weight was even heavier. "I felt like I was standing in a room full of people, yet no one could hear me."

That changed one afternoon in a meditation class. When another participant shared how isolated she felt, Johnny experienced a quiet revelation. "It was the same thing I was feeling. Hearing her say it out loud made me realize I wasn't crazy. I wasn't the only one."

In that circle of stories, Johnny found his footing again. Wellness House became a lifeline. Cooking classes, meditation, and support groups chipped away at the loneliness. Staff members Emily, Jeri, Jane, Angela, Casey, Marcela, and others became trusted guides of care and connection, offering not only expertise but presence that made Wellness House feel personal and real.

"The people here don't just know your name, they remember you. If I miss a week, they ask where I've been. That makes you feel like you matter."

Before Wellness House, Johnny had begun to let go of life. "I thought maybe this was it. I didn't want to fight anymore." But something shifted. The simple act of being seen, being remembered, lit a spark. "Now, I look forward to life. I've learned that a diagnosis isn't the end; it's just a new chapter. A different normal."

Johnny's journey is a reminder that healing is not only found in treatments or therapies; it is found in the shared moments that tether us to hope. It begins with connection, with community, and with the courage to take that first step.

"Wellness House is such a wonderful place," Johnny says. "It's where I learned I'm not fighting this alone."

A Story of Faith, Family, and Finding Wellness: Maria and Felipe’s Journey

At Wellness House, healing is not just a destination, it's a journey walked together, side by side, in a community of care. Maria and Felipe's story is a beautiful reflection of that truth.

Maria, a lifelong nurturer and animal lover, came to the United States from Mexico in 1986, carrying dreams of a better life. Over the years, she built a home filled with simple joys: her husband, Felipe, her children, grandchildren, and beloved pets, Sparky, Muñeka, and Michi. Her days were filled with cooking, tending to her garden, and lending a hand to anyone who needed help. “I like to think of others first,” she says. “Helping people makes me happy.”

When Maria was diagnosed with kidney cancer, followed by metastasis to her lungs, the news felt heavy but not unfamiliar. She had seen cancer before: in her mother, her sister, and her first husband. Yet, with her diagnosis, Maria chose to see not an ending, but a new chapter in her life's story. Guided by her unwavering faith and supported by Felipe, who has been her constant companion, Maria met cancer with courage and grace.

It was her oncologist, Dr. Jay Dalal, who first told Maria about Wellness House. After her initial treatment, Felipe turned to her and said, “Let’s go today.” And they did. From the moment they walked through the doors, greeted by the warmth of Marci and the front desk team, they knew they had found something special. “I call it a VIP club for free,” Maria says with a smile. “But it’s not the building, it’s the people. They make you feel like you belong.”

For Maria, Wellness House became a sanctuary where she and Felipe could breathe, learn, and connect. They immersed themselves in cooking classes, exercise programs, meditation, and support groups. “We’ve been given so much knowledge and love here,” she says. “We learn how to live better, eat better, and make informed, educated decisions about my treatment.”

Felipe, too, found solace and purpose in the community. After retiring to be by Maria’s side, he became her partner not only in life but in every Wellness House program. Together, they share their journey with others, offering encouragement to fellow participants and reminding everyone they meet that they are not alone.

Maria’s outlook is one of profound gratitude and positivity. “I don’t take anything for granted anymore,” she reflects. “Even a simple tortilla with a little salt—I thank God for that moment.” Each day, in her heartfelt prayers, Maria now lifts up the names of her doctors, nurses, and the Wellness House team, asking for blessings upon the people who have given her hope and strength. “They are my angels on earth,” she says. “I pray for them as much as I pray for myself.”

Through Wellness House, Maria and Felipe have not only found resources and support, but a community that feels like family. They now see themselves as ambassadors, eager to share their experience with others navigating the uncertainty of a cancer diagnosis.

“If I could tell someone just beginning their journey one thing,” Maria says, “it would be this: Trust in God, trust your doctors, and come to Wellness House. You’ll find everything you need here. And you’ll never feel alone.”

Jackie: Finding Strength Through Every Season

Jackie's journey with cancer began in 2021 with a diagnosis that shook her world but not her spirit. "At first, I was shocked. But something in me said, 'You have to do this. Be strong,'" she recalls. From her home on the South Side of Chicago, Jackie faced each stage of her breast cancer treatment with a quiet determination fueled by her faith, her family, her niece Anna, the love of her husband, Todd, and their 12-year-old rescue dog, Bella.

Though treatments left her physically drained and emotionally raw, Jackie knew she needed more than medicine to heal. Her doctor encouraged her to "keep moving," and it was through pamphlets at the cancer center that she discovered Wellness House. "I was looking for something to help me stay strong," she says. "And I found it."

At first, she was quiet, uncertain. But soon, Wellness House became her second home. From yoga and therapeutic sound bowls to nutrition, art classes, and the Wellness House library, Jackie embraced it all. "I started out going with my crackers and ginger ale, just trying to get through the day. But now I go because I love it. It's helping me live."

The community she found became a lifeline. "Everyone is so kind. I'd walk in and they'd say, 'Hi Jackie!' It made me feel like I belonged." Over time, she became a guide for others—offering encouragement to new participants, answering questions, and gently helping them take that first brave step.

Through laughter, learning, and even tears, Jackie has discovered new strength. "I've met people who are so strong. And I've learned that I am, too. You never think you'll look at a cloud and say, 'That's beautiful,' because life moves so fast. But now I stop and notice."

Jackie often thinks of a flower she planted at her grandmother's grave—one that somehow stood tall through a brutal winter. "That flower reminds me I can keep blooming, even through life's harshest seasons."

With each class, each conversation, and each act of care, Jackie continues to bloom. "This is my new normal," she says. "And Wellness House is helping me live it with hope."

Karen: For the Children

“They just love it. They push to go. They feel seen there. And I know that if the worst happens... they’ll have a place to go. A place where they’ll already feel held.”

Karen

When Karen walks through the doors of Wellness House, she's not thinking about herself. She's thinking about her daughter, Avery, and her son, Benjamin, wanting to give them something solid to stand on while everything else in life feels uncertain.

Diagnosed with stage 4 colon cancer, Karen is no stranger to complexity. Her care has taken her across the country, from clinical trials in Los Angeles to long stretches at the Mayo Clinic. But even while navigating her own treatment, her focus has always remained steady: make sure the kids are okay.

And they are. Thanks, in part, to Wellness House.

It was Avery's second-grade teacher who first suggested Wellness House, a teacher who had lost her own mother to cancer and remembered how much Wellness House children's programs meant to her. "She said it gave her and her siblings a safe place to land," Karen says. "That's what I wanted for my kids."

From their very first visit, it was clear they'd found something special. "They just love it," Karen says.

“When I think of Wellness House, I think of sharing my feelings.” - Ben

“They push to go. They feel seen there. And I know that if the worst happens... they'll have a place to go for support. A place where they'll already feel held.”

Weekly kids' groups have become a constant in the family's life. Every Thursday, after Avery and Benjamin join peers who understand what it's like to have a family member with cancer, Karen and her husband talk about the visit with them over dinner—gently opening space for conversation, healing, and connection.

In those moments, Karen says, the heavy things feel just a little lighter.

“There's so much about this that can feel isolating. Even when you're surrounded by support, it's easy to feel alone,” she says. “But at Wellness House, my children see other kids going through it, too. They understand they're not the only ones.”

Karen calls cancer “a forced march.” It's brutal, exhausting, relentless. But even on the hardest days, it's her children who ground her. “They're full of joy,” she says. “Some days, it starts as me trying to mask the struggle, but they pull you into the joy. And eventually, you're really in it.”

She hopes for more time, more adventures, more days on the couch with their old dog Pepper, more Thursday nights. But in the meantime, she finds comfort in knowing that Wellness House is here, not only for her, but for the ones who matter most.

“This place,” she says, “it gives my children what I can't always give them right now. And that means everything.”

Kid's Kamp

At Kid's Kamp, children come together for a week filled with creativity, laughter, and friendship. From tie-dye shirts and nature walks to yoga, cooking, and an end-of-week talent show, each day offers opportunities for kids to discover joy, build confidence, and connect with others who share the experience of a cancer journey in their families.

Supported by caring staff and teen volunteers, kampers enjoy a safe, welcoming space where they can simply be kids—playing games, making memories, and feeling truly understood. At Kid's Kamp, hope shines brightly, reminding every child that they are not alone.

“Kid's Kamp gives children the chance to connect, create, and just be kids while offering parents and caregivers a much-needed moment of respite.”
